Always a bit ahead of her time, Jane graduated from the University of Rochester with a degree in Psychology in 1954 and worked as a journalist prior to marrying Carl and dedicating her life to raising her family. Jane's Catholic faith was a factor weaved throughout all aspects of her life. Also ever-present was her sense of humor, pride in her Irish heritage, and her love of the Pittsburgh Pirates. She could often be found combining these passions singing Irish classics while leading her friends down the ski slopes or along the golf course.

Her life was lived and her legacy will live on...with devotion and dedication to faith, family and friendship. She will be dearly missed.
