

RUSSELL FUHRER

On Monday, November 13, 2023. Russell was a loving husband of Nancy Fuhrer and father of Evan Isaac Black. He was born December 29, 1961, in New York City's Mount Sinai, on a cold snowy night. He grew up in Brooklyn and attended elementary school at a parochial, non-denominational Yeshiva. There he studied supremely long hours and attended Sunday school from 7:30 - 4:30 in the afternoon. He was accepted based on a test to the competitive and prestigious Stuyvesant High School where he attended from 1975-1979. Since he was 14 years old, he took the subway 45 minutes each direction to school along with friends. There were students from all 5 boroughs, cultures and walks of life at that school. Russell attended undergrad at University of Pennsylvania from 1979-83, and then Medical School at SUNY Buffalo from 1983-87. After medical school, he decided to pursue Radiation oncology. Having never been to Pittsburgh, he began his residency in radiation oncology at AGH in 1987. In Pittsburgh he met Nancy Scheid, and married in 1991 at the Tree of Life Synagogue. Russell soon got an offer at UPMC, where they hired him as a visiting assistant professor since he only planned to be in Pittsburgh for one year. He ended up staying for 32 years, living and working in Pittsburgh. He started work at Shadyside Hospital, and became Medical Director at the Mary Hillman Jennings Radiation Oncology Center. In 1999, Russell was recruited to AGH where he has been ever since. There, he took care of thousands of patients over the years, eventually specializing in prostate cancer. He was always able to implement new techniques and bring new technologies to Pittsburgh, providing state-of-the-art care. Russell enjoyed taking care of patients and working with great staff over the years. He was the Director of Clinical Operations Radiation oncology department, in addition to administrative and clinical duties. Russell served as President of Beth Samuel Synagogue from 1997-98. He loved traveling with Nancy, and enjoyed extended family vacations and celebrations. The most important and fulfilling thing for Russell was caring for and spending time with family. He is survived by his wife, Nancy; a son, Evan (Lacey); his father, Neil Fuhrer; his mother, Marjorie Black; brother, David (Violaine); sister, Beth; loving in-laws, nephews, nieces, and longtime friends. Russell had a small collection of classic cars that he enjoyed working on, driving on the back roads of Pittsburgh and hanging out with friends with similar useless interests. He enjoyed problem-solving and fixing cars as a meditative hobby. He had an excellent sense of humor that was appreciated by his friends, family, co-workers and patients alike. Russell enjoyed fixing and improving things around the house, garden, and property. He loved being in nature and hiking with Nancy, family, friends, and dogs. Russell died peacefully of pancreatic cancer at his home in Sewickley with his wife, son and daughter-in-law. Services were held at RALPH SCHUGAR CHAPEL, INC. Interment Beth Shalom Cemetery.
