After graduating from Rankin High School, Ralph joined the US Air Force. When he finished his military service, he attended and then graduated from Duquesne University. Along with his wife Eleanor, Ralph was employed by the McKeesport Area School District. He served as a teacher and counselor at McKeesport Junior High School and then as Vice-Principal of Francis McClure Junior High School. Ralph and Eleanor would frequently get together with friends at the Holiday House supper club in Monroeville to enjoy the lineup of celebrity entertainers. After the club closed, the gang opted for an annual trip to Las Vegas, which they made for 25 straight years. Ralph enjoyed the arts, particularly music, and was proud to have once shaken hands with Frank Sinatra during one of his concerts at the Civic Arena. Eleanor and he also had the privilege of attending a reception honoring Luciano Pavarotti at Heinz Hall.

Lovers of travel, Ralph and Eleanor were able to visit most of the world. Favorite places included Italy, Germany and Eastern Europe. When not traveling, Ralph enjoyed spending time with his family, especially his sons and his grandchildren.
