

Sir Benjamin "Scrooge"

He was indeed a wealthy miser Gave nothing to the poorest charity

And cleanliness and kindness both

For him was always a rarity

His riches he kept in his cellar Locked in wooden cabinets of many

And every night he would go down there and count Right down to the very last penny

But one night on Christmas Eve
There was a crackling noise from there

He grabbed his bat for protection

But on his face was a look of fear

He proceeded to make his way down

And there was an odor of fumes and gasses

The wooden cabinets had caught on fire

And all the money had turned to ashes

He had learned an invaluable lesson

About a battle you can never win

When glorifying the word... "Greed" ...

Being the... "7th" ...deadliest sin
