He was well known for his selfless and outgoing personality. Bill's life took a challenging turn in 2008 as he was attempting to prevent a burglary in North Braddock and was shot twice. Bill survived but was severely disabled. After this event, Bill quickly learned the value of a true spouse, who since 2008 spent each day caring for Bill. Over the years, his spirits remained high as he spent time with his cherished family, volunteering with the Bridge City Church foodbank, and watching Bar Rescue and WWE. His dogs Wednesday and Rasmus also brought him immense joy.
