

SISTER COLETTA ADELSBERG, CSJ

Age 85, died Wednesday, February 12, 2025, in the 67th year of her religious life. The daughter of Oscar and Helena Berrick Adelsberg, Sister Coletta entered the Congregation from St. Catherine of Siena Parish in Pittsburgh.

Sister Coletta ministered in education for 40 years, often infusing her creative talents of mime, drama and sign language into the curriculum. She served 18 years as a teacher, including at St. Joseph in New Brighton (1963-69), Mount Gallitzin Academy in Baden (1969-72) and Annunciation in Pittsburgh (1972-77). She was also principal at Our Lady of Victory in State College (1978-80), Most Holy Name (1993-98), and St. John Neumann School in Pittsburgh (1999-2012).

"I'm grateful for the welcoming heart that Jesus has given me to be open and loving to children. Education is a huge challenge today because the needs of God's people, particularly the poor, are overwhelming," she said while reflecting on her education ministry.

Her life-long passion for serving children and families extended beyond the classroom through Rainbows for All God's Children, a support group for youth navigating grief resulting from death or divorce. In 1996, the National Catholic Education Association recognized Sister Coletta's outstanding achievements as the Rainbows program director at St. Catherine of Siena, one of the first established in the Diocese of Pittsburgh.

Sister Coletta cared deeply about helping "kids learn to love themselves" and "adjust to life situations in a healthy way." Whether educating a kindergarten class or listening to the needs of a struggling adolescent, Sister Coletta's dynamic presence and endearing smile incited laughter, healed wounds, and touched the lives of many.

Sister Coletta once described how her faith was central to her relationships with others: Every day, I put Jesus between me and whoever is in front of me. He's my source of energy and compassion."
